Intimism and Knowledge. A civic center in the Albaicin quarter

Granada, Spain. 2007

Graduate Thesis project

The experience of living in the Albaicin quarter brought into a piece of contemporary architecture, connecting traditional and modern architecture, assimilating roots and the language of the context, values that can be only discovered by using and knowing the neighborhood in the dialogical experience of quotidian life. Opacity and visibility. Compactness and fragmentary. Public dimensions and domestic scale. Comprehension and experience. Rationalism and sensuality...

Refurbishment of a G.D.R. exhibition center into accomodation for 500 refugees

Leipzig, Germany. 2017

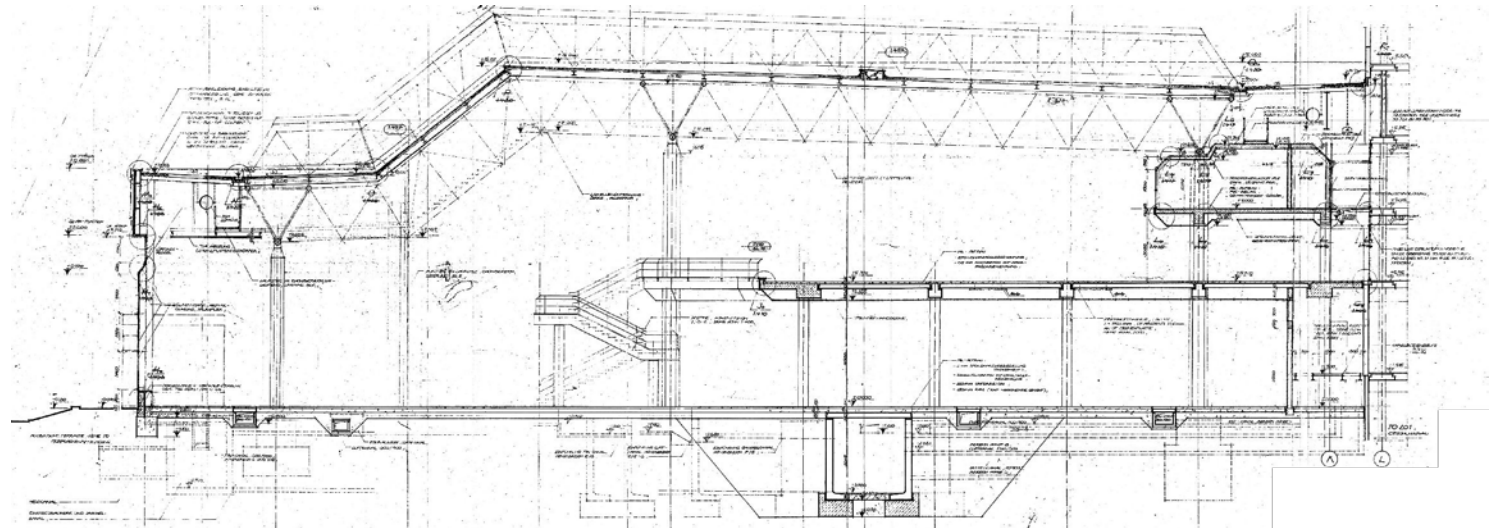

In the wake of the war in Syria, the German government offered shelter to asylum seekers in Europe and proposed several buildings towards the accommodation of the large number of refugees. The old G.D.R. exhibition complex Messehalle 13 in Leipzig was one of them.

Originally, the building was divided in two parts:
-3600 m² of exhibition areas, organised in three levels, built of steel frame, concrete, glass and prefabricated components;
-2860 m² of offices organised in 6 floors, and built with the typical pre-cast concrete components system of new architecture in the G.D.R, also known as Plattenbausystem.

The project included the refurbishment of the entire 6460 m² exhibition complex, into accommodation for 500 people, including shared kitchens and offices for administration, security, medical and social services.

Upstream of this, the project involved a comprehensive study of the constructive heritage of years of socialism, documented in the Bundesinsitut für Bau-, Stadt, und Raumforschung (Federal Institute for building, urbanism and spatial researches), in order to work with its specific components without damages.

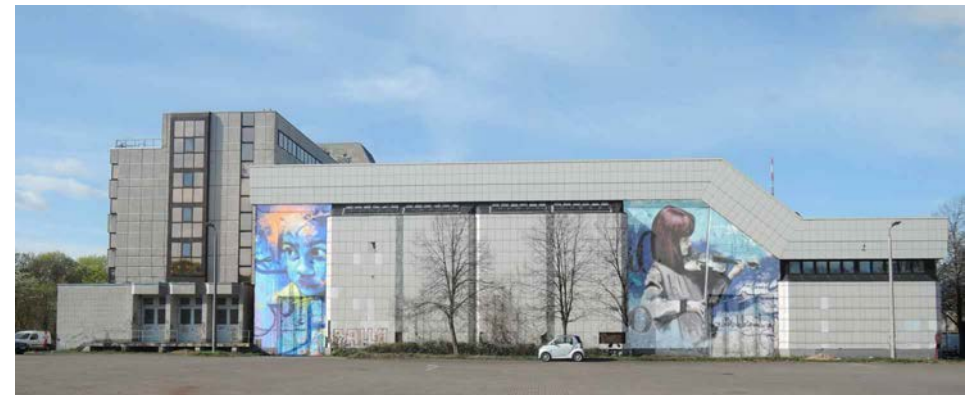

Dissemination of inside plans and pictures are not allowed.

New Port City in Brazil

Lüneburg, Germany. 2013

Think Tank MOOC - 21st Century City, led by Daniel Libeskind. Leuphana University.

Awarded as best project

Understanding that more than 3 billion people will be moving into cities over the next 40 years, participant in this 1st experimental Think Tank MOOC worked in interdisciplinary teams from different countries and designed models for future living in urban centers under the direction of architect Daniel Libeskind and the collaborative web-based learning led by distinguished scholars and experts from different countries and disciplines. The teams translated their ideas of the ideal city into a final visualization.

So called Team #524 - The Cookbook, our team,

Bianca Kindler - anthropologist, Frankfurt an Oder, Germany,

Eric Reinhard - architect, Boston, U.S.A.,

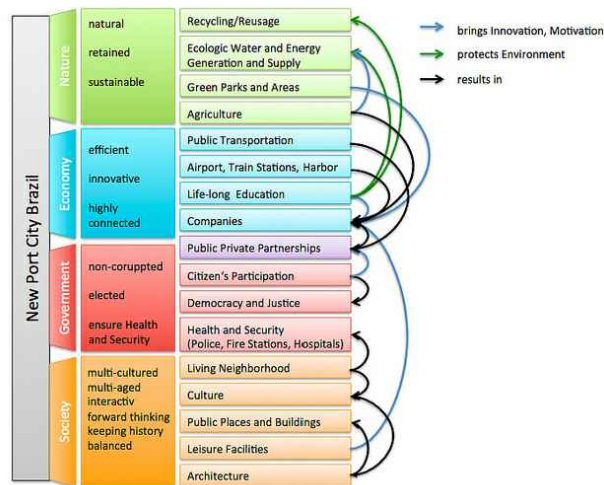

Esteban Fernández - architect, Buenos Aires, Argentina,

Javier Pérez-Lanzac - architect, Berlin, Germany,

Martina Helms - analyst, Hamburg, Germany, was chosen as best team and our project New Port City was awarded as best project.

The team and the project were presented with Daniel Libeskind and the teachers crew in Lüneburg University (Germany) in October 2013
